Ken Dobbs

May 18, 1941-Jan. 17, 2026

Kenneth Wayne Dobbs, born on May 18, 1941, passed away on January 17, 2026, at the age of 84.

Ken cherished his family, wife Linda, sons Michael, Clayton, and Matthew, brother David (Belinda), and his daughter in-laws. He is preceded in death by his parents, sister Wanda, and brother Richard.

Ken was blessed with grandchildren, acquired grandchildren, and his first great-grandson. To his children, grandchildren and neighbor kids he was known as "Pop". He also has numerous nieces, nephews.

In his younger years he served in the Army and always wore his Army veteran's hat with pride.

Ken was a prior Scoutmaster for Troop 291 in Plano and treasured his scout friends, boys scouts, and the scouting high adventures and campouts that he experienced with them.

He owned and worked at his own air conditioning/heating company for many of his working years. He then retired after 13 years as facility manager for Blue Cross Blue Shield.

He acquired life long friends through his passion for cars, from years of drag racing to showing classic cars.

His beautifully restored silver 1963 silver split-window Corvette coupe and 1957 turquoise and white Chevrolet 2-door were always winners at shows all over the region. He cherished his coffee Tuesdays, time spent with his "Legends wrench crew friends". His group helped many classic car owners restore and maintain their vehicles over the seven years he served as Wrench Co-ordinator for the Corvette Legends of Texas and before.

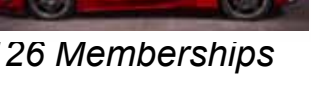

He had a full laugh, and by nature was known for his storytelling. He liked to entertain you with continuous jokes and stories.

As his family and friends, we are all connected because of the life of one good man. His laughter will be missed by many.

Funeral services are unscheduled at this time.

Next, Tom presented the member of the year award to Dennis Conte for his work on the recent Big Bend road trip and for his membership efforts. Dennis graciously accepted and thanked everyone for the award and their support. Pictures were taken. The award is usually presented at the holiday party but Dennis is unable to attend this year tions you may have about the swap meet. Please contact Jeff for any other info.

Dave Willenborg told of an article he read about a regular guy just doing his job back in 1986. James Moylan, working for Ford, stopped for gas driving a fleet car in the rain, got soaked because he pulled to the pump on the wrong side of the car. Hence he came up with the idea of that little arrow on the gas gauge that points to the side of the car where the gas tank is located. He suggested it as a 'product convivence' that day and a few months later it was added to the Ford designs. Today, worldwide, nearly every production car has a 'Moylan arrow'.

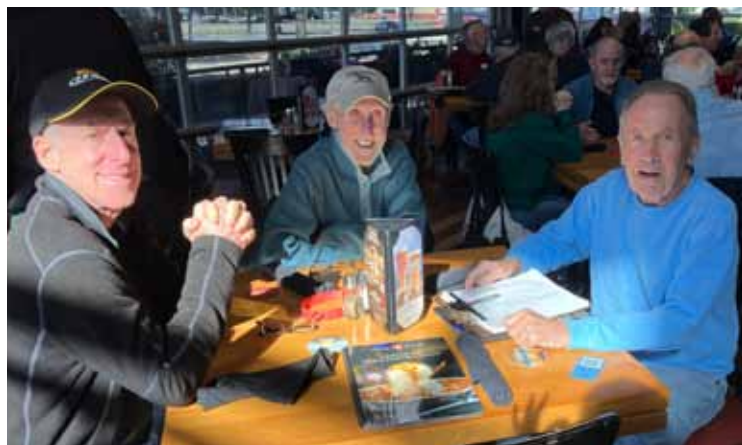

Larry Dyer asked for any funny or embarrassing stories for his 'Larry Dyer awards' to be presented at this year's party. They were a huge hit last year. Please contact Larry if you have any stories.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:16 pm.

2025 Member of the Year Dennis Conte

President Tom Hubbert presented The Legends Member of the Year Award recipient to Dennis Conte at the January meeting. Dennis is a familiar face at all Legends meetings and functions. He has served as our Membership Chairman for five years, making sure new members have name tags, get their newsletters and that they are included.

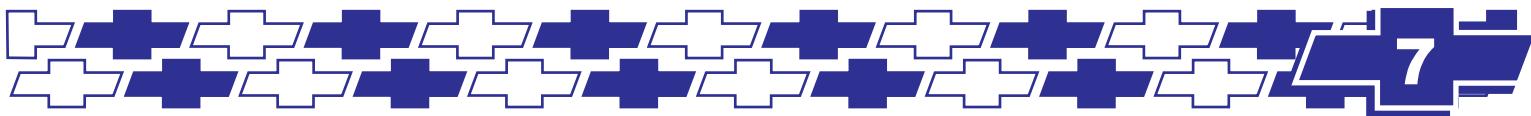

He's been very active in all club activities since joining in 2004 driving a white 1961 survivor. He eventually restored it to a breath-taking Jewel Blue and White, air conditioned Corvette. He regularly drove it to many events as far away as Detroit, MI and Carslile, PA, proving that the first generation Vettes can be enjoyed on the road. Now you'll see him driving his 2019 Red coupe. (pictured on the cover)

He's planned many dinner cruises over the years. In May 2025 he took us on an extraordinary four-day trip to the southern tip of Texas. Headquartering in Alpine, TX we went through Big Bend National Park, to Fort Davis, the McDonald Observatory, and lots of other scenic places. (See the full report in the June 2025 newsletter.)

Traditionally the Member of the Year Award is presented at the yearly After-Holiday party, but Dennis will be in Aruba and miss that event.

Member of the Year award was conceived by Larry Dyer to recognize members who fully participate in club events and drive, display and enjoy their Corvette. The President independently selects the recipient. Currently elected officers are not eligible. Our club survives on many members, who put a lot of effort into planning events, keeping things running, and reaching out to our members and other Corvette owners. This Award acknowledges just one of many who are deserving.

The 1st on the 1st Corvette Show, in McKinney, has been popular for many years. After it was no longer being held, Lone Star Corvette Club began holding one in Grapevine in 2025. This was the second year in Grapevine and it was held at Corky's Gaming Bistro, 3520 Grapevine Mills Blvd. There was plenty of parking, the food and service was great at the restaurant and the weather was unbelievable.

They gave Top 10, Manager's Choice and Lone Star Corvette Club Pick. Plan on attending January 1, 2027! Same place!

Across the Spectrum of Corvette Experiences, the E-Ray Feels Just Right

The E-Ray is the least taxing, most refined and versatile model among Corvette's available power trains and offers a lot of bang for a lot of bucks.

By Dan Neil, The Wall Street Journal

Fresh from a face lift, the E-Ray features a mid-mounted 6.2-liter V8 (495 hp) driving the rear wheels and a potent e-motor (160 hp/125-lb-ft) up front.

A silver-metallic Corvette E-Ray has been sitting in front of my house for days, bored out of its mind, icy slush gathering in its side-mounted intercoolers. Freshly face lifted for 2026, the E-Ray is the only street-friendly Corvette with all-wheel drive. In addition to the 6.2-liter V8 mounted amidships, a 160-hp electric motor between the front wheels provides cooperative AWD. System net: a roaring, righteous 655 hp.

The E-Ray also features a Weather drive mode, with more progressive throttle response and earlier traction interventions, widening the margins of driver control.

My problem is not software but footwear. While all-season tires are standard equipment, our E-Ray arrived wearing Michelin Pilot Sport 4S ZP (i.e., run-flat) tires. Known colloquially as "summer tires," the staggered Michelins (20/21 inches, front/rear) are magical, if and when they come up to operating temperature. But as temperatures fall below about 50 degrees F, they get harder, noisier and less grippy. At 20F they might as well be carved obsidian. All the plows in Kansas can't plow like the E-Ray on cold summer rubber.

It didn't help that these lingerie-thin tires were wrapped around a set of surpassingly exotic, crystal lacquered carbon-fiber wheels--a $13,955 option all on their own. From the driver's seat every pothole looked like the mouth of financial hell.

"Do not use summer-only tires in winter conditions," Corvette's retail website notes, "as it would adversely affect vehicle safety, performance and durability." I can only conclude Corvette is out to get me.

I don't know why. I've been generally supportive of Chevrolet's aspirational standard-bearer, now in its 73rd year. When you consider the decades of speeding tickets and court fines paid, Corvette owners have built whole communities. I'm especially keen on the C8--that is, the eighth design generation (2019)--which was the first with the engine located amidships instead of up front. Shifting the center of mass rearward dramatically improved the Corvette's balance and hotshot acceleration. Marquee values for the E-Ray include an official 0-60 mph acceleration in 2.5 seconds and a quarter-mile elapsed time of 10.5 seconds. I assume they warmed up the tires beforehand.

Anytime I review a Ferrari, McLaren or Lamborghini, I can expect letters arguing that America's Sports Car is the equal of any of the European exotics for half the cost. Let's not quibble. The E-Ray is certainly a lot of automobile. The damn thing is simply thrilling to look at: the devouring expression, the hypersonic roof line, the primal geometries of airflow, lift and cooling that inform its shape. And that caboose! The E-Ray shares this wickedly wide rear quarters with the extreme-performance ZR1.

But it's a lot of money too. If you consider Corvette's year-over-year price increases and steep depreciation curves, the bang-for-the-buck argument kind of fizzles. Still the bang is epic.

The five power trains available constitute five distinct experiences. Starting at $70,000, the entry-level Stingray enjoys the services of a big, brassy 6.2-liter V8 pumping out 495 hp (Z51 package) paired with an eight-speed dual-clutch automatic. Carbon-ceramic brakes and magnetic adaptive dampers come as standard equipment. For most buyers, the trad-core Corvette is the fastest damn thing they'll ever drive.

Next up is the E-Ray, with the 6.2 liter V8 aided by an electric motor on the front axle, starting at $108,600. This, it seems to me, is the Corvette to have, if you are only having one--the least taxing, most refined and versatile version of the formula. In the seesawing tedium of daily traffic, slow and fast, the e-motor silently and seamlessly supports the big V8 in those few hundred milliseconds it takes to spool up. In Tour drive mode, automatic gearshifts are heard more than felt.

Next--and at the opposite end of the emotional spectrum--comes the Z06, starting around $120,000. The Z06 shakes its fist at God with a free-breathing 5.5-liter, 670 hp V8 fitted with a flat-plane crankshaft. Flirting between gears near its 8,600-rpm red line, the Z06 roars and seethes like a blast furnace. It's a glorious noise. They should keep recordings of it in hospitals, on crash carts, to revive expiring old guys.

Some want to pay more. Starting at $183,400, the the bewinged ZR1 adds twin turbos to the 5.5 liter

V8, netting a deeply unsettling 1,064 hp.

Lastly--for special customers, on special mediations--Corvette builds the ZR1X, which marries hybrid AWD with the thermalizing insanity in the back of the ZR1. Slamming 1,250 hp to the ground in an electromechanically coupled instant, the ZR1X can bolt to 60 mph in under 2 seconds on its way to a quarter-mile under 9 seconds. It turns left and right, too. Last summer, the development team lapped the Nurburgring Nordschleife test track in a mind-bending 6:49.275, thumping not a few half-million-dollar exotics in the process.

Who'd I rather? The ZR1 and ZR1X require astronaut training. The Z06 with the ear-gasmic, flat-plane crankshaft, would be too loud for the street--my street, at least.

For reasons having nothing to do with its fuel efficiency (dismal, by the way) and everything to do with courtesy, I'll take the E-Ray. You see like its siblings, the E-Ray is hella loud. Obnoxious, even. Shattering the stillness of a winter morning, the car's cold-start cycling sounds like someone is docking a PT boat at the curb.

The hybrid E-Ray includes Stealth feature, which provides a few miles of electric-only range at speeds up to 45 mph. That's enough to sneak out of the house early in the morning (or arrive in the dead of night) without waking the family, or worse, the HOA's noise wardens.

Winter is cold enough.
